So, I gave them the Diggiloo Thriftydish box and - once they'd emptied it - picked up their empty plates and cups, and whisked them to the kitchen, where I emptied their plates, cups, flatware and glasses into the sink and scrubbed them all up with soap. That's when I heard the woman coughing. Not the dry hack of old age, but a wet, hacking cough as if she were afflicted with pneumonia or perhaps even tuberculosis. I rushed back, as I have to use the toilet, and while I was there I listened to her hacking. Now, I don't mind a bit of coughing, but a prolonged and wet hacking cough makes me jumpy and it is horrible to hear. When I came out, I found her propped up in the armchair in the front room, coughing again. I went to her and asked her what was wrong. Then, as she was coughing again, I examined her. As she coughed, her breathing was becoming more and more laboured. I thought, 'this must be serious. She's not had that bad a case of pneumonia, surely.' Then she stopped coughing. I was confused. The flat door to the kitchen was open. She was coughing in there. No. I repeated that firmly, and she looked at me. 'No. I'm fine. I've just remembered,' she gasped. 'I'll get the doctor,' I declared. 'No!' she said. 'No, you don't. I'm fine. I'll call the doctor in the morning. I need a rest. I'm tired, that's all.' I looked at her with growing alarm. She looked exhausted. She looked at me and laughed as

When I click on Add button, I can see new row added to my grid but I can't see new row editable. Instead I see new line like this: I am adding new record like this: $(" #grid").jqGrid('addRowData', {id:uniqueId, cust:uniqueId, name:uniqueId}); Can somebody help me? A: The problem was in your HTML. In , you should have id of the grid (). This is one of the bugs of HTML. If you want to see the result in your browser, use the Developer Tools in your browser. They can show you the source code of the page. This invention relates generally to an internal combustion engine and more particularly, to a system and method for improving engine efficiency by eliminating a portion of the heat provided to a coolant from engine coolant, such as a coolant mist or mist generated in a thermoelectric generator. Internal combustion engines such as for example, diesel engines are known to generate a significant amount of heat when operating. This heat is usually dissipated through the engine coolant. It is known to utilize this engine coolant to generate electricity to operate other electrical components and to supply power to a load. It is also known to directly use the engine coolant to generate electricity for operation of electrical devices or for heating purposes. The engine coolant can be utilized to heat the environment. However, there is
