It was released as a 2-CD/2-DVD set, in a variety of different packages including regular, deluxe and collector's editions. Dream Theater embarked on a world tour in support of the album, which began on May 19, 2014, in Barcelona and concluded on December 30, 2018, in Shanghai. The album debuted at number 46 on the Billboard 200 and number 4 on the Top Rock Albums chart. Background This was the band's first album of new material since their 2012 studio album, Systematic Chaos. When recording the album, guitarist James LaBrie said that "we are doing this one more aggressively than we have done a few of the others, this time to make sure that it is the best we've ever made". The album was recorded at their own Studio Title in Woodland Hills, California. While the album was being recorded, the band also began a world tour to support it. According to the band, the album was released at the end of November 2013 in order to avoid competing with the Grammy Awards, which is traditionally held in December. This was done in order to get the album released while Dream Theater still had time to perform at that year's Grammy Awards. Promotion and release On October 31, 2013, the band released a music video for the song "Scream of Passion", from the album, which was filmed at Luna Park in Sydney, Australia. On November 3, 2013, the band released the album in North America. On November 8, 2013, the album was released in Australia, Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Spain, and Switzerland. On November 12, 2013, the album was released in Ireland, and on November 13, 2013, the album was released in the United Kingdom. On November 12, 2013, the album was released as a part of a very limited edition vinyl box set, which included a remastered version of the group's 1993 album, Images and Words. In Australia, it was also released as a part of a limited edition picture disc CD box set, which included a remastered version of the single "Pull Me Under" and a DVD featuring the music video for that song and a documentary on the making of the album. On November 15, 2013, the band released a music video for the song "Hands in the Dark", from the album. On November
