
Sims 4 Abuse Mod ((EXCLUSIVE))

Apr 6, 2019 Note: Each category in the table above should not be used to define a single sim, it should be used to quickly filter results. A: This is not the ideal solution, but since there's no way of being able to control which sims are "dangerous" I guess I'll do the next best thing... Once you've installed the max-violent.exe from the link I posted above, you can find it in the program files of your game, inside the "gamemaker" folder in the exe. Copy max-violent.exe from the program files to your program files. Open max-violent.exe and change the line with CGEDData/cgedata.cfg from "CGEVersion.Version.ToString.Replace('1','2')" to "CGEVersion.Version.ToString.Replace('2','2')". Note that you can only do this if you've downloaded the max-violent.exe from this link. After that, try sims 4. It's not compatible with this mod, but it's the best you can do. A: If someone has not realized the official mod list, you can activate it on your mods with command here. I'm not quite sure if any adult sim or sims 4 there. You can use version of 5.0 from here. It's not necessarily the best solution because when you get in real world, you get tired to click small sims 4 child. A: You could implement the so called "Acqurate Violence Mod" (see here for the link). There are some explicit ways you can actually achieve this (basically: sims losing and regaining control over their own bodies). In a first situation: The "abuser" sim turns himself into a child and performs some action in front of the "victim" sim. The "victim" sim wakes up to a scream from a child and can't make a sound. In a second situation: The "abuser" sim turns himself into a (tiny/
