We talked to the folks at BeerAdvocate.com and they gave us a couple of recommendations. The first was a stout from Wicked Weed called "Adventurous," and the second was a lager from Flying Dog called "Burt Reynolds Lager." Adventurous: 5.9% ABV | Belgian Style Stout Burt Reynolds Lager: 4.9% ABV | American Lager I wasn't sure I wanted a 5.9% ABV stout in a beer which is usually a sessionable beer, so I ordered the Burt Reynolds Lager. The beer tasted good, and I really liked the level of smoothness it had. It was really light in the body and had a nice, sweet malty flavor. I would buy it again if I was in the mood for a lighter beer. + 1 4 + 5 . - 2 0 * v + 2 9 C o l l e c t t h e t e r m s i n - 2 * d + 2 4 6

Morphometric analysis of the rat corpus luteum (CL) was performed at defined stages of the estrous cycle and early pregnancy. Progesterone-producing CL cells were recognized on the basis of location, morphology, and steroidogenic capability. The major morphometric parameters measured included: nuclear area and the percentage of nuclear area covered by nucleoli; nuclear eccentricity, as determined by means of distance between nucleus and lumen of the CL; and mean nuclear diameter. In addition, the height of the CL and the length of the CL from the outer surface of the uterus to the center of the nucleus were determined. At all stages of the estrous cycle and early pregnancy studied, the majority of CL cells were spherical and had small nuclei. In cyclic rats, the mean nuclear area (1,080 micron 2) was significantly less than that measured in 2d92ce491b
