A: var query = _documentsCollection.AllQuery(); query.Add(Query.EventProperty(EventPropertyNames.Path, new PropertyPath(_basepath))); query.Add(Query.PropertyPath(EventPropertyNames.ID, new PropertyPath(_ID))); query.OrderBy(orderbyvar.ToString()); query.Skip(500).Take(500).Load(); dynamic events = query.ToEnumerable().ToList(); events.Above is code that I use daily (only in the chrome-hosted binder it is a bit more complex to use) So that array contains the results of the query so you can look at the key values to get what you want. Please note: You might need to add ToEnumerable to your _documentsCollection to get any results back (I did this and removed it and it worked fine) You can also order by a path you have read in I assume the array will contain ID's (the date) If you have selected /movies/crd/id then your results will be I believe ID's then after you have all the ID's do not forget to add.Skip(500).Take(500) as you have over 500 after any ID's. You can also add a getFirst to limit how many you get back so ID's 1-10 are fine then 100 to 120 and so on. List of tourist attractions in Dhaka Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh, has an array of attractions spread in its four distinct zones: old Dhaka, New Dhaka, Gaothan and Rangpur. The city is already home to various monuments of National and International importance. The city is also the host of the 1972 Asian Games, the 2012 South Asian Games and was proposed to host

Q: how to fix Timeout error in python while parsing xml with lxml I'm trying to parse the contents of a directory. But i'm getting Timeout error while doing so. I'm using python3.5.2 and lxml. def parseXml(xml_path): sys.stdout.write("Parsing XML: " + xml_path + " ") root = etree.parse(xml_path) return root def main(): root = parseXml("/home/ashwin/Desktop/testing_files/Test.xml") sys.stdout.write("done") if __name__ == "__main__": main() I'm running this on ubuntu 14.04. Please help me in fixing this error. A: This is because lxml.etree.parse() does not use asynchronous HTTP requests. Try using xml.etree.cElementTree.parse() instead. // Copyright (c) 2015 The Chromium Authors.
