I'm confused to which one is faster or smaller or better than the other one. Because I'm using single thread that is for each request. Which one is better than the other? A: It totally depends on how you run your code. But if I run something with Node.js, then I run on my server, which is a single process, and if I run on multiple cores, then I use a cluster with 30 processes, in other case if I have 4 cores on my machine, I use it as a server. The multi-threaded solution has performance issues, because multiple threads are using a single connection to the database, and I recommend you to use a single connection in Node.js. I recommend you to read this documentation from node.js: If you need to use more than one connections you can use a plugin: package pflag import ("fmt" "strconv" "strings") // -- intSlice Value type intSliceValue struct { value *[]int changed bool

The reports suggest that a deal could be struck in the coming days. The Romanian reports, which focus on Sibiu's attempts to bring in reinforcements, claim that the player's fee is around €15m. They also say that PSG have made a €10m bid for Babacan and that he could be set to become the French club's first arrival in the summer transfer window. FC Sibiu were not in the top flight at the time of the transfer speculation, but they did finish top of the Romanian league last season, and in the UEFA Europa League they reached the semi-finals, where they were beaten 2-0 on aggregate by Valencia. The club have been given permission to sign players in the summer transfer window, but they are only permitted to spend a maximum of €4.5m on any new signings. There has also been speculation over the weekend that Sibiu's former coach Adriej Cioflin and his assistants Ionel Duda and Cristian Sileanu are considering taking the jobs at CFR Cluj, who are chasing promotion from the second tier of Romanian football. Babacan spent the second half of last season on loan at Crystal Palace, scoring four goals in 17 appearances. He was then sent back to CSKA and made 11 appearances in the second half of the 2017-18 season. Sibiu are currently coached by former AC Milan boss Remo Freuler, who was appointed in November. New Jersey has become the first state in the nation to regulate the amount of sugar in sodas. The new measure, which took effect Friday, limits the amount of sugar that can be used to 20 grams per can or bottle — the equivalent of about two teaspoons. " 2d92ce491b
