De profil In the military tradition of the Roman Empire, the De profil was an honour that granted life tenure to retired senators. This rank of honor, which is not official, replaced the magister equitum of the Empire. At the time of the honor, the Senate often faced a shortage of candidates; if the individual was deemed suitable, he was appointed to the senatorial rank for the remainder of his life. Somehow related to the honorary title poeta sine petto, the De Profili had a higher status than the Poetae Senatus, who were men in good standing who had proven their worthiness for the life senatorial service, but were not lifetime senators. The honor of De Profili was first granted to the consul Quintus Aelius Tubero on 10 December 185 BC, following the Battle of the watching for signs of consumer fraud.

"Privacy risk is being translated into trillions of dollars of market value," said Michael Calce, director of financial services practice at the New York-based consulting firm Celent.

"Companies in the remittance and other financial services, and consumer finance markets are really worried that this is going to become big," he said. This concern could also shape the timing of Libra's launch in other countries. The currency is being launched on Monday in a dozen countries, but the cryptocurrency is being gradually rolled out to reach as many countries as possible by the end of the year. to the commercial displacement of the once-thriving American gun-making industry, every gun manufacturer in Texas would soon be forced to relocate to New Mexico. And the most popular pistol manufacturers and purchasers in Texas would immediately move to New Mexico. 8 That is not the kind of regulation this Court abhors. At its core, the Supreme Court of Texas has decreed that the free market will decide the future of the pistol market in Texas, and the Constitution permits this choice. See, e.g., West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette, 319 U.S. 624, 638 (1943) (“The very purpose of a Bill of Rights was to withdraw certain subjects from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be binding upon all.... The underlying idea... is that the individual should be free to exercise his own reason, and to follow his own conscience, on matters relating to the domains of personal life, thought, and conduct, as well as those relating to political and social conduct and conflict.”) (quotation marks omitted). C. Finally, Ms. Stockton contends that the law is unconstitutionally vague, which prohibits the stockpiling of guns at home for home defense. But the Second Amendment protects the right to possess weapons to preserve “a decent society.” Herndon, 787 S.W.2d at 188. And, as illustrated by the Supreme Court’s striking down laws that prohibited gun ownership altogether, Heller, 554 U.S. at 626–29, as well as invalidated laws that severely
