to an inner peripheral face shape of a rolling guide unit which is used in a linear motion guide apparatus or the like. JP-B-62-46768 discloses an inner peripheral face shape of a rolling guide unit. The rolling guide unit includes a retainer groove formed in an outer peripheral face, an inner peripheral face and an outer peripheral face of a retainer. The retainer groove is formed with widths different in a radial direction of the rolling guide unit. JP-A-8-212668 discloses a rolling guide unit. The rolling guide unit has a bottom retainer groove formed in an outer peripheral face with a wedge-like profile in a circumferential direction. The bottom retainer groove is formed with a different circumferential depth in a radial direction of the rolling guide unit. The retainer groove in the related art has a single circumferential depth. Therefore, a wide variance of the circumferential depths of the retainer groove is required when fabricating the rolling guide unit by die casting. This may exert a bad influence on characteristics of the rolling guide unit. The bottom ret
