AUDIO EFX – The biggest effects inside the SPECTRALIVE NXT plugin The Audio EFX is a classic stereo effects unit. Just like the Vintage

What's New In SPECTRALIVE NXT?

SPECTRALIVE NXT: Time-domain & Frequency-domain Parametric Compression. Compression curves designed to preserve the original transient behavior and the dynamics of audio signals. A real-time Dynamics Simulator automatically computes the optimum parameters for different bandwidths and loads. Compressed and Detailed Analysis. Time-domain and Frequency-domain Analysis provide an in-depth analysis of audio signals. Transient Detection. Compression settings, based on NN analysis, control the transient detection process. High quality DSP and CPU optimizations. SPECTRALIVE NXT Features: Input. 16/24/32 bits audio input signals Audio format conversion Time, Pitch, Sample Rate, and Volume Input Delay. - The plugin's input delay. - The plugin's ref. Sample rate. - The plugin's Volume. MP3 Format Automatic detection Time-Sensitive Compression. Time-Sensitive Compression. The plugin's input signal is automatically detected. Positional dynamics Threshold Comparator. Adjustable threshold, adjustable delay, and threshold shift. Use the plugin's threshold comparator to compare an input signal and threshold. Set the threshold value, adjust the delay between the input and threshold, and shift the threshold to the input signal. The threshold value and delay result in the compression effect being obtained. Dynamic Range Compression. DR Compression. Apply the input signal to a dither-less quantizer. Use the input signal to automatically compress the dynamic range. Frequency-domain Linear Process and Curve Design. Linear Process. Set the ratio of input and output, and the time constant, and the number of poles. A filtered reference process curve, which is an impulse response (IR) of a high quality filter, is generated automatically. Use the plugin's frequency-domain linear process for audio compression. Variable Op Amps. Select a desired variable op amp and linear op amp. Use the plugin's internal amplifier. Auto Tone Management. Adjust the limiter threshold and the internal amplifier threshold. Insert the plugin's dynamics simulator function into another plugin. Apply the dynamics simulator to audio signals. Flexible Amplifier Model.
