NewBlue Stabilizer 1.7.2 is a totally intuitive plugin for stabilization of HD and 4K video for high-quality cuts in any editing software, which is not only compatible with professional video cameras, but also with the latest and most affordable small ones such as the Sony RX100 series. If you are already familiar with a popular video editing software, you are probably familiar with the issue of stable video and even if you do not, stabilization is an important tool for any format you wish to record. Moreover, high-quality editing requires professionally-made cuts which can only be obtained using the highest video quality and most stable settings. Not just pros, but even amateur enthusiasts like to record videos of their children, pets or other interesting objects and events. While the goal may be to share the recordings with friends, family and other acquaintances, the difficult task that always comes along with it is to stabilize the video so as to create an image with a well-calibrated and highly-stable background. In addition to creating a professional-quality cut, the stabilized videos often serve as a way to demonstrate the high-quality camera to potential clients and thus increase sales. NewBlue Stabilizer and its dedicated support staff do an excellent job of identifying and fixing different issues and problems so that the plugin can be used reliably and to achieve the desired effect in nearly all kinds of circumstances. In addition, the absence of any known bugs, ads or adware guarantees that you will not encounter any issue with the use of the plugin in your workflow. There are not many known issues, but the following are often reported in the NewBlue Support Center. • Watching the video preview is not as smooth as usual, only use the mouse wheel to scroll the video around. • The stabilization does not work even if it is not enabled. • The plugin is sometimes accessed by the host app as an effect and not as a camera effect. • The plugin is sometimes not always available in some host apps. Since the interface is self-explanatory, the plugin should be a piece of cake for any typical user. This stabilization plugin is compatible with Windows & MAC and has no viruses, spyware and adware. It is a one-time fee for one year of support and updates, but there is an option to continue even after the trial period. If you would like to read the full description, please visit: 09e8f5149f
