Video Tutorial: Check out the video tutorial on YouTube to see how to make the Rinzo XML Editor and make life easier when editing XML files. 1) Open the Rinzo.xml Editor 2) add the words, for example, document or package 3) click Preview button 4) now if you see the list, it's all ready 5) click Run buttonQ: Server space I have a server in the house with 4 SSDs in raid 0 and a 2TB hard drive that I'm thinking about using for scratch space. If I put a 1TB drive in the back of the computer, should I be allocating it using the OS disk and install the operating system there? Or, should I be installing the OS on the 2TB drive, and then for OS/programs/etc, I mount the entire 2TB drive in a directory? I'm confused about how I should allocate space to my OS and the programs I install on it, and if I should keep my data directory as is (i.e. where I keep my movies) or if I should move it into the OS drive. I'd really appreciate any advice. A: I would put the OS onto the SSDs, and the 2TB drive for data. Only if this seems
