Photoshop's programs work only on standard desktop computers that run Microsoft Windows. Sorry, Mac users, but Photoshop is Windows-only. Photoshop CS5 now works on MAC computers, but the image-editing features work only on the integrated applications. If you decide to work with Photoshop, take time to learn the program's various features and how to use them. Adobe Photoshop CS5 has greatly enhanced the new features in previous versions of Photoshop as well as introduced new features that make this image-editing tool even more powerful. Photoshop has many useful tools and features that are better for your image-editing projects than the ones that are available in the Elements version. (See "Photoshop: The Image-Editing Basics," later in this chapter.) I show you how to use Photoshop's various tools and features to enhance your photo images. When deciding what Photoshop program to purchase, find a version of Photoshop that works on your computer. You can use Photoshop CS5 on either the MacBook Pro or the MacBook and Photoshop CS5 runs on the new Intel Macs. # UNLEASHING THE POWER OF THE ADOBE SPOTLIGHT FOCUS FEATURE Photoshop is a multifaceted program with many powerful tools that enable you to modify your images quickly and easily. You can make quick changes to a picture or manipulate a photo in order to take it in a whole different direction. One of the best tools in Photoshop is the new Adobe Spotlight feature. In the image shown in Figure 9-1, I enabled the Spotlight feature, and then used the feature to make some adjustments and changes to the image. Note that when you enable the Spotlight feature, an icon displays on the default workspace (the place where you're currently working). You can access this feature either by pressing the CMD+ALT+A keyboard shortcut or by choosing from the Edit menu (Mac) or Edit⇒Blend Modes⇒Spotlight (PC). Figure 9-1: The Spotlight feature gives you access to Photoshop's powerful tools. After the feature has been enabled, it's displayed in the workspace. You can use the icon to access the tools and options that are available. To toggle the Spotlight feature on and off, press CMD+SPACEBAR. ## Colors The Colors options that you access through the icons on the workspace workspace are extremely powerful. First, you can click

Q: C# - How to remove specific border style on GridView at runtime? I have my GridView control decorated with the following CSS class: .well.mygrid { margin: 0em; padding: 0em; border: none; background-color: #E5E5E5; } I want to dynamically remove the border from specific rows of the GridView. How would I go about removing the border from all rows, except for those with a specific class? I have no problem removing the border from all rows (i.e. the border class): this.MyGridView.Controls[0].Controls[0].CssClass = "mygrid" A: Take a look at this MSDN article. If you want to implement this in the code behind, you can try: foreach (ListViewItem item in MyGridView.Items) { item.BackColor = Color.White; item.CssClass = "mygrid"; } If you want to implement this using CSS, you can try: .mygrid{ background-color: #E5E5E5; border: none; } EDIT: You can also play with CSS directly in the object, so you can do something like this: this.MyGridView.Controls[0].Controls[0].CssClass = "mygrid" this.MyGridView.Controls[0].Controls[0].CssClass += " myborder" Then, create an additional CSS class: .mygrid.myborder { border: 5px solid red; } This should also work, but it only works if you only add the border once. Q: How to open a new browser tab and then fetch the entire HTML of another site without redirecting? I want to open a new page (by clicking a link to another page) within the same browser window, but then open the page in a new tab. I don't want the browser to redirect or reload the page; I want the page to open in a new tab. A: By default, a browser will open
