Q: How can i sort an array of objects in React Native? I'm trying to sort some data in react native, but I'm stuck on this problem. What I have: constructor(props) { super(props) this.state = { data: [{id: 0, name: 'item 1'}, {id: 2, name: 'item 2'}, {id: 5, name: 'item 3'}, {id: 8, name: 'item 4'}, {id: 3, name: 'item 5'}], currentId: undefined, visible: true } } I need to sort the data by id and then display only 10 results, so I need to have the last 10 items first and then have the first 10 items. How can I do it? I haven't found any examples of sorting arrays of objects. A: You can use array.sort() method. import React from'react'; import { StyleSheet, View, Text, Image, TouchableOpacity } from'react-native'; const columns = [{ title: "ID", dataIndex: 'id' }, { title: "Name", dataIndex: 'name' }]; const rows = [{ id: 0, name: 'item 1' }, { id: 2, name: 'item 2' }, { id: 5,

Voiced alveolar flap in cleft palate speech: a clinical study. A wide variety of palatal speech sounds can be produced in cleft palate patients. The purpose of this study was to investigate the distribution of phonetic features of the open-close flap and the manner of articulation for velar and alveolar segments in patients with cleft palate. Electropalatography was recorded from nine cleft palate patients, who also served as their own controls. The frequencies of occurrence, medians, and 95th percentiles of the duration of the open-close flap and of the open articulation for velars and alveolars were calculated and analyzed. All the patients produced the open-close flap in cleft palate speech. The durations of the open-close flap produced in the velar and alveolar segments were significantly longer than those produced in the non-cleft controls. Both of the phonetic parameters showed even distribution in the velar and alveolar segments, as well as in the open-close and close segments. The mean percentage of the velar-to-alveolar articulation was 27.67%. The velar and alveolar segments of the palatal flap in cleft palate speech have distinct phonetic features, which can only partially replace the function of close segments. This study suggests that the open-close flap should not be regarded as a unitary concept but should be divided into the open and close segments.Friday, March 11, 2015 Believe it or not, I actually received a letter in the mail yesterday from the Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism. It was part of a survey to "find out how people see the Arkansas River," and it was just about the most bizarre letter I've ever gotten. Among other crazy queries, it asked if I'd be interested in writing a story about how I was "done" with canoeing and fishing: "The Arkansas River is a national treasure. It is a complex part of Arkansas's history and also a vital natural resource. Most of the Arkansas River (Tillamook County east of Portland) is not accessible by road for a driver from the West and is surrounded by private property. Unauthorized fishing is prohibited on the Arkansas River, and it is illegal to take any fish out of the river without permission. As a result of the growth of the city of North Little Rock, many recreational sites on the Arkansas River were "overused" and could not be
