“For the first time, FIFA understands and captures real-world situations in-game,” said Daniel Vávra, Director of Player Development at EA Sports. “We have captured movement data for 1,000 different player types in 1,000 different ways over four years of research, ultimately capturing 15 million on-ball actions over 22 matches. This technology will elevate every single player on the field and allow users to fully experience the intensity of a match.” FIFA 22 is set to be the largest game launch in history, with more than 400 million players participating across more than 15 platforms. It also marks the second generation of in-game celebrations, where players can use moves to celebrate goals, assists and more. Along with the first generation of player celebrations, FIFA 22 introduces a new Pro Player Career Mode. Players take on the role of a young footballer and compete for future contracts with other professional football clubs. The Pro Player career has been written by former professional footballer and analyst Nacho Alvarez, and features customized transfer scenarios for each team, which changes based on how the player performs in game and on the pitch. There is a new “Create-a-Team” mode allowing players to create their own teams from a pool of players and set player performances based on club requirements. “Coach Your Team” mode is also in FIFA 22, where users can create and manage teams using a simple and intuitive interface. “There is a clear and dramatic improvement in artificial intelligence in FIFA 22. In previous versions of the game, players used a button-pressing approach and players would be restrained by a trail of animations to create animations,” said Robomarketing Guru Craig Allison. “There’s a clear and dramatic improvement in artificial intelligence in FIFA 22.” “We’ve completely redone the code and AI and now AI reacts to more contextual information to make the AI smarter,” Vávra added. “Additionally, the physics and animation system are completely revamped. We’ve taken a step forward in animation performance and made a noticeable improvement in player controls.” The new motion capture system in FIFA 22 makes it possible for players to move more naturally, showcasing the beauty and athleticism of their in-game movements. On-ball animations are more intuitive and an improved tackling system makes gameplay more active and challenging

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Adapt to the pace of the modern game with EA's all-new Update Penalty System, Reactive Physics and Adaptive Damper System. Save yourself from a penalty or a stoppage as the ball sweeps by you by diving to get out of the way. Watch as players shrug off your tackles, use the weight of the ball to knock you over or execute moves that were only possible before.
- Introducing HyperSpace Technology, an extra layer of a new, realistic physics engine and perception system that eases the movement and reactions of players. While not forgetting about fundamental skills like evading tackles with clever footwork and dragging opponents with your passing.
- Include new Ball Rising and Ball Collision reactions that will change a game-changing movement as they do in real life. Win matches in previously impossible ways as defenders jump or fly to intercept a lofted, rising ball and knock it down with their bodies.
- Fly high and catch a powerful new volley with dribbling moves or lay on a wonder-strike with a chip from distance, all with a new Player Trajectory.
- Discover harder to reach spaces to be a player of your team. Now attackers can run through defensive lines with the sprint skill, driving through with a close control move, slice through opponents by carrying the ball out of reach, and boomerang a sudden counter-sprint into a scoring chance.
- Creating a new view of what the player can do on the ball. Players pass and shoot and dribble with new Athletic Trajectories. Players use the ball like a tool to do more: use the ball's centre of gravity to create situations, create space to get in a cross and run into a blind spot for an off-balance goal, shoot one-handed for an unlikely finish.
- The return of Skill Shots, with winners like a skilful chip or lob or skip pass flicked on to an onrushing forward.
- Feature changes over the life of a player show how your traits evolve. Perform higher level moves or a rapid reaction.
- Stick around to discover key moments in the match, stories that are only told by the right player. Analyse players' full performance to understand their instincts, then use the new 'Goal Impact' analysis to see what the real impact of your moves were.
- Activate on-field coaches and referees with
