This has long been one of the most played sports on computers, and I don't have any doubts that this game will exceed expectations. But what are people actually talking about that is happening with the game? First of all, let's quickly review the features of the game. The following chart will give you a clearer overview. Edit: See this chart at the end of the article for some new information. Edit: Check out the latest screenshots here. EDIT: The following video is also a good overview of the main game modes. The main highlights of the new game are of course the improvements in online modes, as well as the introduction of a brand new 'My Player' mode. I will talk a little bit about those in more detail below, but before I do that, let's dive a little bit deeper into what the game has going on behind the scenes. In FIFA 22 there are literally two different versions of the game. One version is the retail version, which is also referred to as the Standard Edition. The other version, which I will be using for this review, is the Digital Deluxe Edition. The Digital Deluxe Edition, like the Standard Edition, is EA Sports' way of rewarding those who have pre-ordered the game. Basically, you get this game for free, but at the same time the game also unlocks a bunch of free content, such as new features, stat tracking, and so on. The game runs at 60 FPS on all graphics modes, including 4K, and includes the most advanced physics engine yet, with over 2.5 times the processing power of FIFA 19. The game also supports 3D Touch on iOS and Android devices, VR mode on Oculus Rift, and Microsoft Virtual Desktop as well. For more information about what's new and different in FIFA 22, check out the rest of my gameplay review. FIFA 22 has a brand new 'My Player' mode, which tracks your player's statistics, tells you about your player's good and bad moments, and offers you stats for individual matches. The game also tracks your performances on a nationwide, continental, and global level. You can now also share your weekly stats across social media and compare your stats with other players worldwide. Don't forget, though, that if you're playing online you will still have to find matches against
