Californians are feeling the effect of the regulations from April. "Right now I feel like I'm getting information more directly from my doctors instead of going through all these layers," says Christine Thomas, a yoga instructor in Marina, Calif. California's hospital regulations will go into full effect in April. The regulations will increase the scrutiny of hospitals. They require hospitals to produce annual reports on deaths, especially children's deaths. The standards aim to make hospitals better, easier to navigate. But at the same time, hospitals must create a plan for any dangerous mistakes they might make. Hospitals must create detailed plans for unsafe mistakes, like mistakes with patient deaths, that happen at any hospital. It means doctors have 595f342e71
