I think I am going to have to get a tissue box for this coffee grinder. There are several things that I'm always losing. I can't stand to touch the table without dropping it, and I think that I am going to have to get a tissue box for my coffee grinder, or at least a nice container that will be a little more sturdy than my old glass butter dish. This project has now been completed. I made a coffee grinder for my parents who asked me to. The instructions were very clear and the parts were easy to find. I plan to do another one for my mother-in-law who has been trying to get me to make one for her since she saw my coffee grinder. It was easy to make. The parts were available in my local hardware store. The project was put together in about 3 hours. I would recommend this to anyone who needs to make a quick repair. I also bought a new espresso machine in my local Home Depot. This project was very simple, but the all important coffee grinder is yet to be bought.

Incomplete compression of an aneurysmal cyst of the mediastinum. Aneurysmal cysts are slow-growing malformations that may be associated with mediastinal abnormalities. Aneurysmal cysts of the mediastinum usually manifest with compression symptoms and have been confused with acute mediastinal syndromes, such as angina pectoris, acute pericarditis, or an aortic aneurysm. Computed tomography is the method of choice for diagnosing mediastinal masses. This is a case report of an incompletely diagnosed aneurysmal cyst, which presented as an atypical chest wall abscess. Enantiomeric separation of bufalin using capillary electrophoresis with chiral complementary chiral selector. An enantiomeric separation of bufalin was studied by capillary electrophoresis (CE) in a system employing chiral complementary selector (CISS) and beta-cyclodextrin (CD) under the influence of direct current. The CE system comprised a fused-silica capillary of 0.8 x 50 mm (50 microns i.d.) and an uncoated capillary of 75 microns i.d. The CISS is based on the difference in specificities of sodium 2-naphthalenesulfonate (2-NHS) for DL- and D-alpha-CD complexes. The influence of separation conditions, such as applied voltage, the concentration of the CISS and the buffer pH, were investigated. A biphasic separation was obtained in a mixture of a solution containing 100 microg ml(-1) DL-alpha-CD and 20 microg ml(-1) 2-NHS with phosphate buffer (20 mM, pH 3.0), 2-NHS (5 mM), DL-alpha-CD (30 mM) and voltage of 14 kV at 20 degrees C. The enantiomeric separation was completed within 30 min. The DL- and D-enantiomers were baseline-resolved when the chiral selector concentration was below 50 mM in the run buffer, whereas the D-enantiomers were eluted at higher concentrations. The migration order of bufalin enantiomers was D->L-bufalin.
