") time.sleep(10) sys.stdout.write("Done ") sys.stdout.flush() print "Hello" time.sleep(2) print "World" What can I do to make it work? A: The error is telling you that you cannot have a line number of 25 in the crontab file. It is in the same place as every other number (example: line 3 of the crontab file): the lines of the file are numbered from 1 to 99999. So lines 25 through 34 of the crontab file are illegal. The user has to be root to edit the crontab file. If you do know what the real crontab file looks like, you can find it in /etc/crontab. You can edit the content of the file using the editors under /etc/cron.d/ directory. Q: Direct3D11 is releasing objects continuously I'm using Direct3D11 with C++.
