Movement is everything when it comes to realizing the aesthetic movements of the many soccer players on the pitch. In HyperMotion Technology, AI-powered movements also takes on new levels of realism in all the key areas of player interaction – heading, passing, dribbling, receiving, shooting and more. FIFA 20 introduced a new and improved "Kicker System" that's designed to better reward intelligent and direct tactics from teams, more difficult defensive action and a wider variety of tactical options for players. This year, the "Kicker System" has been upgraded with a new and improved energy system and goalkeepers have a new AI. In a new feature called "Regain Control", players can help their teams keep possession by dribbling through narrow passages and they'll now be forced to slow down when they're being pressured. Creative play will also be made easier with the introduction of the

“Get Ahead” system that allows players to control players in-motion with a variety of different dribbling and passing techniques, such as: Kick Pass, Stepover, Fake, Roll and Step Back. The new “Get Ahead” system is also designed to bring more skill to the game through challenging physical game-play, such as defending through aggressive tackles. In FIFA 20, defenders will also be given the advantage over attackers with the introduction of the “Defending in Attack” system. This new AI tactic makes players more aware of the ball carrier as the defender creates more space through anticipatory defending. This system is also designed to allow defenders to stay and play in a position that can counter an attacker’s run and stop the attacker in their tracks. The defending in attack system is not available as a cheat, and can only be activated by a defender. The “Defending in Attack” AI also does a much better job at taking off-ball movement into account. This will help both defenders and attackers stay within position, helping keep possession and limit dangerous counterattacks. FIFA 20 introduced a new set of Tactical Defending parameters to give players more control over how the defending system plays on-the-ball. Players can adjust the Defensive Pressure and Offensive Pressure parameters, allowing players to change the level of pressure that defender will feel from the ball carrier while they’re in possession. The midfielders and wingers will also have more control over how
