Installing Photoshop Elements is easy. If you already have Photoshop installed on your computer, just install Elements next. If you already have Elements installed, you may want to download the full version of Photoshop before installing Photoshop Elements. To install Photoshop Elements, follow these steps. Enable Photo Programs and Linked Multimedia Files if they are disabled. Photo Programs can be found under: Tools > Options > Applications. If the "Photo Programs and Linked Multimedia Files" option is checked, then this is already enabled. Download and Install Photoshop Elements Head over to adobetutorialz.com/photoshop-elements-download. Click the Download Link button to download the installer file. Install the Photoshop Elements Program To install Photoshop Elements, double-click the file you downloaded or drag and drop the file onto your desktop. A little program is loaded into your computer, ready to be used. Some computers will show a message about already having an application or program installed. If you don't see this, then open the Control Panel, click the Programs link, and scroll to the left to find Photoshop Elements. Make sure you have the most up-to-date version. Check the software update if it isn't automatically available. Adobe offers a free update to Photoshop Elements software, which is then automatically downloaded and installed. The easiest way to start using Photoshop Elements is to install a new image. If you have just downloaded Elements, then start a new image. Otherwise, drag the open file in to the package. You will be asked where you would like to place the file. New Images for Photoshop Elements A template image is usually best for working with Photoshop Elements. If you have a template image or have downloaded and unzipped a package, then start a new image. If you don't have a template image, select "Load Image" to start creating one. Once you have a template image, you can add text. Select "Edit" in the top menu bar and choose "Edit Image." You can use the onscreen keyboard to type text into the document. You can also type text in the new image document by right-clicking on the text box, and selecting "Text." Import Images If you would like to use images that are not in the package, then first open the package. The images will be in the folder "Elements\Elements\your-directory\Files." 05a79ccff

As we have discussed in class, the goal of the first day of class will be to help the beginning students become accustomed to the way that you behave in class. This goal is important because if you abuse the student early on, you will ruin your chances of having fun with the class. For this reason, I try to be very helpful when I am helping you become familiar with the various aspects of your class. That is not to say that I don't get in the weeds with you when you need it. I'll explain more about this shortly. One of the more complex and subtle aspects of teaching a classroom is finding the right balance between being helpful and being overly helpful. As much as I try to make sure that I know everything about your class, I can't be there at all times. Your class is going to have a turn around time. I have a bad habit of being that annoying teacher and promising you that I'll be in class tonight. Then when it comes time to actually be in the class, I'm busy with something else and I just don't have time. You know how it is. I want to help you, but I just don't have time. The answer to this problem is to write down a teaching schedule, and stick to it. I can't tell you the number of times I have been reminded that I promised to be in class one time, and been out of town that time, and I had to leave the class early. When I went back, it turned out that I had promised a student that I would be there, but I thought it was just a later day. Unfortunately, as much as I work hard to keep up with everything that has been going on, there is still more to do than there is time for. When this happens, I try to remember that I need to be fair to the students who are there and get your class started right. The good news is that I am a human being, and people are more forgiving than I would like to be. So what do I do when I have to be gone the entire afternoon, or day? There are several things that I can do. I have the same lecture for every class. I have the lectures at the same time in the same order, but I change the delivery. I have a small course the first few weeks of the semester. I change the delivery, but the content of the lecture is the same. I change the delivery
