It was originally established in 2003, but was closed in 2012 after failing to renew its lease of its location. The farm's initial name was Chicagoland Community Supported Agriculture (CSA), and then later changed to CSA Co-op. CSA Co-op operated a.5 acre CSA farm in Chicago's western suburbs, located at 5231 W. 130th Place. Its membership base was distributed across Chicago; over 800 households were connected to CSA Co-op through the farm and through its network of retail shop locations. CSA Co-op was a member-driven, nonprofit organization of which most members were both farmers and consumers. History The first CSA in the United States was founded in 1977 by Roberta Dodge in San Francisco, California. In 1998 CSA Co-op was founded in Illinois, and in 2005 it became a non-profit. In 2009 CSA Co-op started CSA Clubs in the Chicago Area, more than 100 of which were connected to the Chicagoland CSA Co-op in 2012. In the spring of 2012, CSA Co-op leased its farm in the western suburbs of Chicago to a different organization with the intention to sell the land to a local developer. On July 30, 2012, CSA Co-op closed down all its operations, selling the equipment and supplies to its members as they left.
