Field of the Invention This invention relates to the field of database management systems and, more particularly, to the field of techniques for maintaining persistent data structures for multi-user, concurrent access to data. 2. Description of the Related Art The relational database model is the most popular model for the construction and management of data bases. The model is flexible in the sense that data can be changed, deleted or updated in the database, while queries remain unchanged. Queries can also be used to perform ad hoc retrievals of data, that is, queries can operate on the current contents of the database, as opposed to queries that operate on preexisting data. Relational database systems can be thought of as having two dimensions. In the first dimension are the relations of the database. Relations are sets of tuples, the tuples comprising the database. The tuples of a relation are related by attributes. An attribute of a tuple is a named data item that can be a data type, such as INTEGER or VARCHAR2(3), or a named logical relation between tuples, such as A.sub.2.sup.+ B.sub.2.sup.-. A relation is a set of tuples each having one or more attributes, for example, the relation "all students" could consist of tuples (first name, last name, and age) each having one attribute (last name). In the relational model, relations are independent of each other. That is, a relation is the set of tuples that, when taken together, represent a particular b7e8fdf5c8

Version 1.6.2 - 18 March 2005 Bug fixes. Version 1.6.1 - 4 March 2005 Bug fixes. In summary, the main features listed above work well, however, no matter how many times I disable my screen saver, it always automatically starts up, how the hell do I make this stop? I have the same problem with the auto-clock mode. It works fine in XP Pro. Have just tested it in Win95 Pro and it doesn't work. I get a black screen with the time displayed in a fairly small font - nothing else seems to be happening. Am I missing something in my process? I have the same problem as everyone else. I need to manually disable my screen saver and then my PC screen saver will work again. Then, I need to re enable the screen saver. This is very annoying. If anyone knows a solution to this problem, it would be much appreciated. Same problem here, screen saver won't work. The little silver box starts flashing during the transition time and then darkens the screen and the box goes dark. Very weird. I did notice that if you turn the computer off with the screen saver enabled, the screen saver will come on after a minute or so. It is very annoying. Also, I am not sure if this problem is also being experienced with the previous version of this software, but if you are switching screen saver modes, you may want to turn your computer off before doing this because I found that the program stops
